SHAKESPEARE THE MASTER

nothing of imagination. Of the writings of Shakespeare he said they were full of gems of poetry as bright as the dew which sparkles on the grass under the morning sun. Yet another point made by the actor was that never an author but was more than anxious to have his name printed on the play bills in larger type than that of the star in the production. Even the Emperor of Germany, he said, wrote a play and let it be known. He then asked if any one could imagine that Ben Jonson would permit Shakespeare to have the glory of writing the plays if he was not entitled to it, or of Bacon permitting the actor to appear before Queen Elizabeth to read "Macbeth" if he did not write it.

"There is not a note in the gamut of human passions which has not been struck by the master hand, from the towering ambition of the King to the first faint fluttering of love in the maiden's heart. What matter if all his plays are not the creatures of the imagination of Shakespeare. He took the dramas of the Italians and gave them life and vitality. And the lessons they teach, and how delicately they are brought out. While telling a fascinating story that runs through the entire work of the lesser of the two, Mr. Warde said Shakespeare was an apostle of Christianity. According to the count made by a long-term prisoner in the state prison of Connecticut, the name of God and mercy appear in the works of the poet 937 times, and no single character in the entire list of plays that does not, in his extremity, appeal to God for help. This brought Mr. Warde to illustrations, and he first took Henry VIII, making the great character of Wolsey stand out like a cameo. He said Shakespeare showed no trace of sectarianism though living in the time when there was high feeling over the church, but breathed through all his works the spirit of charity for all. Wolsey's great speech when stripped of honors and wealth, "Farewell, a long farewell," was read with care and deep expression, and the colloquy with Cromwell was just as brilliantly done.

From this Mr. Warde went on through several parts, the prayer of Henry V before the French army, that of Richmond on the eve of Bosworth field, and the deeply touching appeal of the King in "Hamlet," all read with a freedom which turned new lights upon the actor with each recital and recitation.

Leaving this side of the teachings of the master, Mr. Warde took up Polonius' speech to Laertes as an example of the philosophy, and the words of Cassio in "Othello," "Oh! that man should put an enemy into his mouth to steal away his brains," as an evidence of his great care for the sobriety of the people. Mr. Warde then told a story about the late President McKinley, saying that on a visit two years ago the chief executive asked if he played "Henry VIII," saying that it was the motto of his own life: "Let all thy ends thou aim'st at be thy country's, thy God's and Truth." Now that the President had passed away the victim of the assassin, he thought the quotation might well be ended as Shakespeare closes it.

That Shakespeare was unhappily married could not be, he said, for otherwise he could not have peopled his pages with the galaxy of beautiful women. He spoke of Mrs. Jameson's book on the women of Shakespeare and said that student had placed Portia at the head of the list as the most perfectly womanly woman. With naïveté Mr. Warde told the story of Portia and gave the speeches of the colloquy between Portia and Nerissa, and finally between the heroine and the three suitors, ending with Bassanio. During this passage he evoked applause which rung when he said the speech of the Prince of Morocco was one of the manliest of which he knew, and, turning to that portion of the house which was filled with the boys from Kamehameha School, said that they, born under the tropical suns, could well say with that Prince, that they bore the "shadow of the burnished sun." Down through the trial scene he went with Portia, showing her always as the womanly woman, and saying that her speech to Shylock, "The quality of mercy is not strained, etc.," was one of the greatest of all those given to women in the works.

Not content, Mr. Warde went through the list with Rosalind, Juliet, Cordelia, Miranda, the gentle Desdemona, Cato's daughter, Lady Macbeth, of whom he said he thought differently than some actresses, for he saw in her only love for her husband, a man too weak to do right and too weak to do wrong. He concluded:

"When you take up the study of Shakespeare, don't be frightened. Don't think Shakespeare is so deep and obscure that you must be a scholar to understand him. His greatest charm to me is his simplicity. One of the first things to do is to burn the commentaries. If there were no commentaries Shakespeare would be better read than he is. If you want to read, don't first read the thousand and one self-constituted critics, but go right to the words of the author himself. Shakespeare was an actor and wrote for intelligent actors to play before intelligent people, to be understood intelligently. If he had intended his works for the library reader he would have made his poems epic."

He then said that Shakespeare should be read first for the story, then for the poetry, then for the philosophy, and finally for the beauty, and then he said it would be a case of reading whenever one could find the time.

There is much discussion as to the conception of the characters, he said, but the way to do was to take not the speeches, but the first colloquy, and there would stand revealed the character of the man. He illustrated by several quotations and then said: "Read Shakespeare and inwardly digest his words and thoughts. He will uplift and ennoble your thoughts and minds. To understand his beauties is to grow nearer to our God."

CHANGE IN CONDITIONS

C. J. McCarthy, the donor of the free-for-all cup, stated that the race which had formerly been two in three heats had been changed at the instigation of certain people, and said very decidedly that in his judgment the existing conditions should remain unchanged.

It was the sense of the meeting that delays in the saddling paddock be not countenanced and that the offenders in this respect be fined.

It was decided that entries should close on Saturday, June 7, or as in previous years two or three days before the races. Entries may be made to the secretary who will be on hand to receive them at Collins' harness shop.

After some discussion as to refreshment privileges the meeting adjourned, subject to the call of the chair.

Little was moving at faster than an exercise gait yesterday morning at the track with the exception of Socialist, who worked a mile in 1:49.

This morning Costello will work Albert M. and Burns will give General Cronje, Nullah and Del Vista stiff gallops.

Time Center, G. S. McKenzie's runner, which recently hit his leg, is exercising on the track again, having recovered from the effects of his injury. The Hawaiian bred pacing record is 2:28½, made by Judah about five years ago. Margaret H. took a heat in 2:21½ against Violin on July 4, 1898. She was given the heat on a foul, Violin finishing a wheel ahead of her in 2:21.

The Hawaiian bred fastest record was made by Edith R. last year and is 2:38; previously the record was held by Fred Mack.

Tom Hollinger's big green pacer, Ruby C., is by Pilot Prince, a son of Dexter Prince. His owner is giving him a chance to become thoroughly acclimated before racing him. At present he is being broken but shows signs of possessing considerable speed.

Socialist in 1900 ran a mile in 1:44½, carrying 174 pounds. This is the fastest mile at the weight ever run in America.

Del Vista is by imp. Del Mar, out of a mare by Playful.

General Cronje is by imp. Marten-hurst-Songstress, Marten-hurst finished a bang-up third for the English Derby in a very good year. Songstress is dam of the Brooklyn Handicap winner, Kinley Mack.

Socialist is by St. Carlo-Anarchist. Time Center is by George Kinney-Greenwich.

Nullah, the pony, is by imp. Aintree, out of imp. Alderberry.

SHOT HIMSELF IN KAKAOKO

Early yesterday morning the body of Frederick Andrecht, a German, aged 68 years, was found in a lodging house in Kakaoko kept by Albert Kaus. A gunshot wound in the head told a story of suicide.

Andrecht is supposed to have shot himself about 9 o'clock on Sunday night, as a shot was heard near the house where the body was found at that hour.

Deceased came from Kauai, where he had been employed on a plantation, about a month ago. Trouble over money matters is said to have unsettled his mind. He had been staying with Albert Kaus about two weeks, and is said to have previously threatened to commit suicide if he did not succeed in collecting some money due him. Andrecht killed himself with a 38-caliber revolver. He leaves a widow, two daughters and a son, living at Makaweli plantation.

An inquest was held yesterday by Coroner Chillingworth and a verdict of suicide returned by the jury.

A FOOLISH OLD IDEA.

It was once thought that a medicine was all the more beneficial for having a nasty taste and smell. We now know that such an idea is perfect nonsense. There is no more reason why medicine should offend the senses than why food should do so. Therefore, one of the greatest chemical victories of the past few years is what we may call the redemption of cod liver oil. Everybody knows what a vile taste and smell this drug has in its natural state. No wonder most people declare they would rather suffer from disease than take cod liver oil, and the emulsions are quite as foul and abominable as the plain oil, no matter what may be alleged to the contrary. Now it is one of nature's laws that a medicine which disgusts the nose and the palate, and also sickens the stomach, can have no good effect as a medicine, because the system cries out to be delivered from it. In WAMPOLE'S PREPARATION the desired miracle is wrought, and we have the valuable part of the oil, without the other. This effective modern remedy is palatable as honey and contains the nutritive and curative properties of Pure Cod Liver Oil, extracted by us from fresh cod livers, combined with the Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites and the Extracts of Malt and Wild Cherry. The palate accepts it as it does sugar, confectionary or cream. Taken before meals it goes to the very secret stronghold of digestive disorders: prevents and cures Nervous Dyspepsia, Scrofula, Throat and Lung Troubles and all diseases due to impurity of the blood. Dr. G. C. Shannon, of Canada, says: "I shall continue its use with, I am sure, great advantage to my patients and satisfaction to myself." Has all the virtues of cod liver oil; none of its faults. Effective from the first dose. Sold by all chemists.

We sincerely believe that our trimming department has always been a very satisfactory one for our customers. The patronage which it enjoys from Honolulu's best dressmakers warrants us in congratulating ourselves that our efforts to keep it always up to the pace set by Dame Fashion, has been entirely successful.

But though we work hard to keep our stock just right, like everybody else, we sometimes make mistakes. Our New York man, ever alert to keep us supplied with plenty of the best, has this time sent us too much. Consequently we are overstocked. But you know the old saying—"It's an ill wind that blows nobody good."

In order to reduce our stock, for six days we will offer a large quantity of trimmings at half price. This includes Gallons, Allovers, Appliques, etc., in taffeta and Laces. No changes have been made in prices marked on the goods. Whatever the price, you pay only half, but this for six days only.

THIS IS AN OPPORTUNITY FOR DRESSMAKERS—IN FACT, AN OPPORTUNITY FOR EVERYBODY.

Dear Sirs: In my innocence I purchased in Honolulu a jar of your

Pin-Money Pickles

It brought me great trouble, and one of three things must occur:

1. You must stop making them; or
2. I must get them at less expense; or
3. I am a ruined man.

Since my first venture I've had many "jars." My family from early morning "Pickles;" neighbors ring the door-bell and shout "Pickles;" relatives visit me in expectation of "Pickles." Your pickles are my Nemesis. Please, dear sir, quote them by the keg, barrel, hoghead, ten or shipload, and "preserve" me. Yours very truly,
